By-election 13 September 2007 Green Party

Brent Greens' seeds of change

Brian Orr, Green Party candidate for Stonebridge, puts Community Solidarity, Education and Housing at the forefront of his green programme.

Community Strength Brent Council should recognise the potential strength in diversity and bring about its realisation by setting up a Community Centre. The Centre will provide recreational and educational facilities for all, and a focus for the community to come together and address the issues that really affect their lives now and for the future.

Education Young people going to schools and colleges now will be the citizens of the next generation. Education should not just be about learning the skills for a good job. It should be about appreciating the wider world and how to play a part in society.

Housing Housing is the bedrock of a secure, stable society. Greens will step-up improvements in Stonebridge's housing stock, with a renovation programme responsive to the challenge of extreme weather, floods, and rising energy costs.

Vote for Brian Orr as the first Green Party councillor in Brent. Greens will lead the way by pressing for better Solidarity, Education and Housing as the Council's top goals for Stonebridge.

Brian, a retired civil servant, has lived in Brent for the past 20 years. He is a life-long member of the Green Party and Chair of Brent Green Party.

Brian believes that a radical approach to how we treat each other and our environment - locally, nationally and globally - is the only way to avoid the worst consequences of rising food and energy prices, climate change, and the growing gap between rich and poor.

Brian says, "If we don't set in train the necessary changes in our local communities, no meaningful change will happen elsewhere. Stonebridge has an amazingly diverse community and, while this can so easily lead to divisions, it can also lead to a community much better able to deal with a rapidly changing world. Think Global - Act Local!"

Shahrar Ali, Green Candidate for the London Assembly, said, "Brian will pursue radical green solutions that other councillors say are impossible. He has taken a lead on raising the profile of air quality issues locally, long before it became popular to do so."
